LITTLE SICKNESS IN GETTYSBURG

Conditions which usually Cause Much Serious Illness Fail to Make Trouble. Many Colds but Few People Seriously Ill.

Light overcoats on the streets of town and fires in some of the homes tell of the efforts of Gettysburg people to keep fairly comfortable in spite of the unseasonable cool wave which now holds this part of the county in its grip. Reasonably warm days followed by the cool nights are said by the physicians to be productive of sickness but up to this time very little disease which can be traced to that cause can be reported. A local physician in discussing the matter said:

"In spite of the dangerous weather which we are now having there has been comparatively little sickness. I have had only a few cases of Cholera Infantum while there are less than a half dozen cases of Typhoid Fever in the entire town. There have been plenty of people suffering from colds but otherwise the health of the community has been good. It is most fortunate that the cool nights following warm days should not have proved more disastrous to the health of the community."

About the only people who are rejoicing in the cold wave are the Hay Fever sufferers of which there are an unusual number this year. Cold weather puts an end to the rag weed which is believed to cause the disease and early relief is now hoped for by these troubled with the unpleasant Summer ailment.

There has been little loafing or loitering on the streets of town for the past few nights and early morning hours see people hurrying to work rather than taking their time and there has been an unusual haste for this season of the year.

FROST REPORTED

Frost was reported from route 2 Fairfield and several other sections of the county this morning. This is keeping up the record of frost in every month of 1909. It is most likely that the prophecy will be fulfilled as it is entirely probable that October, November and December will contribute their share of the pretty morning coating.

COUNTY BASE BALL SEASON

Rapidly Drawing to a Close. Many Strong Teams Played Large Number of Good Games. New Oxford Took the Honors.

The beginning of September is bringing to a rapid close the base ball season in Adams County. The Summer months have witnessed many games among the amateur teams of the county towns which would have done credit to places many times the size of those in which the contests were held.

Some exceptionally strong teams were developed. New Oxford was the sensation of the season and carried off the honors. Their defeat at the hands of Gettysburg several weeks ago was the surprise of the season which they fully covered up in the two games which followed. The East Enders had one of the best balanced aggregations of players seen in this section for many years. They played clean, fast ball and deserved all the praise they got.

Fairfield also came in for hearty support. The West End team had scores of enthusiastic supporters during the Summer months who watched their successes and failures with great interest. The successes were many and the team was a credit to the town.

Among the other teams which showed strength were Abbottstown and Littlestown. These two nines both put up championship ball, the former showing especially good form during the past few weeks. York Springs, Biglerville, Arendtsville, Bendersville and Idaville all had teams of which they could well be proud, and lovers of the national sport had opportunities galore to witness good games. Buchanan Valley and McKnightstown were also represented on the diamond and aroused considerable interest.

The Gettysburg team did remarkably well considering all of the conditions with which they had to cope. With almost no financial backing the boys worked hard and for an entirely amateur team worked well. Foreign talent was secured for one or two games through the energy of some of the players and the interest taken in this year should be an incentive to securing a first class, up-to-date aggregation for 1910.

ADAMS COUNTY REPRESENTED

Large Number of Adams County People Attend Annual Grangers' Picnic at Williams Grove. The Attractions Offered.

The usual big crowds of Adams county people are spending a day or more at the annual Grangers' Picnic at Williams Grove this week.

The exhibits at this year's picnic are fine—better than ever before—and the success of the exhibition is as great as ever.

The fakirs are attracting even more than the usual amount of attention. One of the novelties is the duck pond. A fakir has a miniature artificial pond, with live ducks swimming. The game is to encircle the neck of a duck with a ring. Needless to say, the fakir has 999 chances to 1 of winning but if you do put the ring over the duck's head you get a more or less valuable prize.

A half dozen new exhibitions buildings have been erected during the summer, and a dozen cottages have been added to the group. Besides this increased equipment, the roadways have been resurfaced with fine stone and all the paths have been fixed up.

Because of an agreement that has been made between forty-seven manufacturers of big engines and threshers not to show at fairs or such places, there are none of the big type on the grounds this year. However, Manager Thomas states the exhibits are 10 per cent. greater than in any previous picnic.

VACCINATION

It is necessary that a child who enters the public schools has undergone a successful vaccination. The question has frequently been asked of the school authorities what "successful" vaccination means. Some parents have claimed that because the first vaccination did not "take" their child was immune.

The child, however, must undergo three scrapings before the school officials will recognize it to be immune. If the family physician has tried to vaccinate a child twice and the scratch on the arm does not become sore, the child must be vaccinated by the district's health officer. If this vaccination does not prove successful, then it is assumed that the child is in no danger of ever getting smallpox.

HOME FOR CHILDREN

A special home for children afflicted with tuberculosis, enlargement of the main dining room, a central heating plant for the large buildings, new quarters for the employees and a combination dining room and home for nurses are all comprised in a scheme for increasing the efficiency of the state sanatorium for tuberculosis at Mont Alto.

MANY SAW ECLIPSE

TRACE BANDIT TO RIVER EDGE

Chase For Robber Who Held Up Train Abandoned.

BELIEVED TO HAVE ESCAPED

Dogs Followed the Trail to the Juniata River After a Long and Irregular Chase—Discharged Railroad Employees Under Surveillance.

Lewistown, Pa., Sept. 2.—The blood hounds put upon the trail of the highwayman who held up the Pittsburgh & Northern express, at the Narrows, came down the mountain, after leading a posse over a long and irregular chase, and followed the scent of the bandit to the edge of the Juniata river. While the stream is running low and does not afford navigation, even for a rowboat, it does offer an easy ford to the old state pike from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, and it is now believed, the robber escaped from the valley along this highway.

Give Up Chase. After the dogs, which had followed the supposed trail over the boulder-strewn mountain, a slow and somewhat wearisome journey, and made for the river, the detectives concluded at once that further search would be useless. Unless the general opinion in this community is all wrong, the nifty highwayman is free, and may spend his $65 worth of shining Lincoln pennies at his leisure, unless some one of the various minor clues unearthed by the detectives leads to his arrest on suspicion.

Find Evidence of Vehicle. There are some indications on the state pike that a team may have been left by the robber near the river, and it is thought after committing the robbery he made off in the vehicle.

A possible clue was found, when detectives discovered that a stranger, who had been camping in the vicinity of the scene of the hold-up for several days, had not been seen since Monday.

The man, it is said, made numerous inquiries about the make-up and running time of trains. It is alleged that several discharged employees of the railroad are also under surveillance, and at least one of them, it is said, may be arrested within a short time.

It is declared positively that the money taken from the train amounted to $3250, consisting of ten bars of gold bullion and $200 in new Lincoln cents. Of this $5190 was recovered.

FIRE IN PARLIAMENT HOUSE

West Wing of Canada's Building Completely Destroyed.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 2.—The west wing of the parliament building here was completely destroyed by fire. The loss to the building is about $100,000, fully insured, but the fine Mowat law library, one of the best collections in the dominion, is a total loss, with no insurance. The cabinet council was in session, when a crash of falling glass was heard. Investigation showed the western skylight falling in and smoke pouring from the roof. Premier Whitney, in his shirt sleeves, directed the preliminary fire fighting, in which the cricketers, including the Philadelphia pilgrims, helped.

$500,000 PITTSBURG FIRE

Five Persons Injured When Blank Storage House Burns.

Pittsburg, Sept. 2.—Five persons were injured, one seriously, and a monetary damage of $500,000 resulted by a fire which destroyed the J. A. Blank Express and Storage house in the east end district of this city. The fire, which started from crossed wires in the elevator shaft of the storage building, spread rapidly, damaging several adjoining residences and stores in the vicinity.

CHALONER CASE POSTPONED

Fight to Recover Estate Involves New York Society Leaders.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 2.—The case of John Armstrong Chaloner, who is fighting in the courts to recover the estate, he declares was illegally taken from him, will not come up this week, as anticipated. An agreement has been reached to postpone the trial until Oct. 25.

It has been asserted that persons figuring prominently in New York society will be drawn into the controversy. Mr. Chaloner, who is a brother of Lewis Stuyvesant Chaffler, former lieutenant governor of New York, and is the divorced husband of Amelie Rives, now the Princess Troubetzkoy, of Russia, is living quietly at his home in Cobham, Va.

RIVER'S RISE A MYSTERY

Chattahoochee Comes Up Twelve Feet In Spite of the Drought.

Columbus, Ga., Sept. 2.—River men here are mystified by the sudden rise of the Chattahoochee river. Although this immediate section is undergoing a drought, the river has risen twelve feet here in the last twenty-four hours. There have been no heavy rains reported at any point on the river, and residents are unable to assign any cause for the present stage of water.

DISPUTE IN SOFT COAL REGIONS SETTLED

Order That Black Powder Must Be Used Rescinded.

Pittsburg, Sept. 2.—The dispute between the miners and operators of the pittsburg district, effecting 18,000 men, 7000 of whom have been on a strike for over a week, was settled at a conference between the operators and the executive board, members of the United Mine Workers of America, with President Thomas L. Lewis, of the organization.

A notice was posted in all the mines in this district, telling the miners that the recent order of the coal companies that black powder must be used in mining coal is rescinded for the present. To secure this concession on the part of the operators, President Lewis appointed a committee from the miners' organization, which will go to Wilkes-Barre to confer with Chief Mine Inspector Roderick, of Pennsylvania, asking a thorough inspection of the use of black powder, or safety powder be made by the state authorities. The miners contend that it shatters the coal to such an extent that their earnings are greatly decreased.

DROUGHT AGAIN BECOMES SERIOUS

Work at Mines and Manufacturing Hampered.

DRINKING SOURCES MENAGED

Cutting off of Water Supply Threatened at Many Places in Pennsylvania—Farmers Haul Water—Springs Nearly Dry.

Reading, Pa., Sept. 2.—The Schuylkill river has never been as low as it is at the present time. It is a foot lower than it was last fall. In a number of places north of Reading a person can cross the bed of the stream without touching water. Boating on the Schuylkill is retarded, and the boats are having considerable trouble in getting along. Tumbling Run dam is drawn upon daily for a supply of water to assist the boats along.

Drought Ties Up Railway Line.

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 2.—The drought was responsible for a trolley tie-up in Wilmington, the entire system of the Wilmington City Railway company being stalled for thirty-six minutes, about noon, because the water in the Brandywine creek fell below the end of the pipe which feeds the company's power house boilers. The tie-up continued until the pipe could be extended to a sufficient depth and steam could be got up again.

Farmers Haul Water; Springs Dry.

Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 2.—Scarcity of water is becoming a very serious matter in many parts of Lancaster county, especially in the southern end. At Quarryville, the water company has notified consumers that they must use the greatest economy or the supply will have to be cut off. Springs that have never been known to fail are about dried up, and many farmers are compelled to haul water for their cattle. The southern and western sections of the county are the greatest sufferers from the drought. Lancaster city's water supply is not any too plentiful.

Large Collieries Made Idle.

Shamokin, Pa., Sept. 2.—With its impending water dam almost a dry basin and no water to be obtained, the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company's Big Bear Valley colliery closed down. The reservoir from which the colliery always secured its water supply ran dry about a week ago. Since that time the operation has been run by the water from the mines until this source became exhausted. Five hundred men were affected by the shut-down. A number of other collieries are badly in need of water.

THE CARD THAT TOOK THE TRICK.

By RUSSELL THORNE.
(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

"The trouble with you, Jim," said Tom Darby to his friend James Terry, "so far as women are concerned, is that you don't understand them."

"I wish some fellow who knows all about them would establish a school where men could be taught to manage women. I'd enter for instruction. You might give me some points if you would."

"Oh, I don't pretend to know the subject thoroughly. I merely keep in mind a few general feminine characteristics. I don't think much of learning theoretically without practice. I'll tell you what I'll do. There's Maggie Worth, a friend of mine, whom I think I know pretty well. I'll introduce you to her and from time to time coach you on how you shall act toward her. How would you like that?"

"First rate." The introduction was made after a few preliminary general instructions, such as not to miss an opportunity to pay a compliment, never to engage in argument and always be deferential. Terry did not have much confidence in being able to learn the subject, but was anxious to get rid of a certain faculty he had discerned in himself for antagonizing the sex. He put his mind on the subject, reported all that was going on between himself and the girl on whom he was practicing to his friend Darby, and received minute instructions as to how to act in each and every case. But whether he was especially obnoxious to this particular girl or he was incapable of being taught how to make a lady's man of himself, he seemed to fare worse with Miss Worth than with any woman he had ever met. Darby kept suggesting acts and words unimportant in themselves, but well calculated to gratify a woman. They all appeared to irritate rather than please the person on whom they were practiced.

"Just hold on a bit," said Darby after Terry had reported the failure of one of the "attempts." The coach had suggested, "You keep off for awhile, and I'll step in and see if I can find out what's the matter. From what you tell me, you carry out my instructions to the letter, and yet they don't seem to work. I'll get Maggie to tell me wherein you fail."

A few days later Darby told his friend that he had better choose another subject. Maggie had taken an especial dislike to him. There was Darby's own sister Ruth. Better try her. Terry seemed quite relieved at the change and entered upon sharpening his abilities to please the sex by whetting them on the new subject. One day Terry said to his pupil: "Somehow, ever since I introduced you to Ruth, Maggie has seemed displeased not only with you, but with me. She says you are a weak, vacillating sort of fellow, and my being a friend of yours shows conclusively that—well, she puts it 'birds of a feather flock together.'"

"Why don't you try some of the devices on her you recommended to me?"

"I will. I'll send her the prettiest basket of flowers I can buy and write her a note. I know exactly how to put it. Just you wait."

A few days later Terry met Miss Worth walking in the park. She smiled at him and asked him if he would show her the way to the grove. In his ignorance of how to please a woman he replied that he hadn't time, whereupon the girl angrily told him that he hadn't a single gentlemanly instinct. He gave way at once and walked humbly beside her. Before parting with him she told him to come to see her that evening; she had a present for him. He called, and, taking the most beautiful flowers from those sent her by Darby, she gave them to him. He took them to Darby and with wonder in his eyes asked him what it all meant.

"Well, I'll be jinged!" exclaimed the teacher in woman's management.

"I'll tell you what, Jim," he said presently. "While I have a general knowledge of the characteristics of women, there's something in this case that puzzles me. I prefer that you should work the rest of it out by yourself."

"I don't know how," said Terry lugubriously. There was an estrangement from this time between teacher and pupil, between Terry and Ruth Darby and between Ruth Darby and Maggie Worth. Darby's efforts to make a lady's man of his friend had apparent ly borne thistles instead of fruit. One day Darby went to his friend and said: "Jim, I've just had a talk with Ruth. What do you suppose she says?"

"What?"

"That Maggie Worth is dead in love with you."

"With me!"

"Yes. And so is Ruth in love with you."

"Great Scott! What makes you think that?"

"She's so bitter against Maggie."

"Heavens! What am I to do?"

"I've instructed you how to win the girl I expected to marry. At any rate, you've done it."

There was a solemn pause between the friends, at the end of which the pupil said, "Tom, can you show me how to undo it?"

"Jim," said Darby, extending his hand after another pause, "women are sharper than men to see some things. I didn't know what an honorable numskull you are."

ALL UNSTRUNG

Many Gettysburg People Suffer from Nervous Troubles and Don't Know Why

Thousands of cases of kidney trouble show few outward symptoms except nervousness, depression, languor, irritability and inclination to worry over trifles. It is generally due to the poisonous action of uric acid on blood and nerves, and can't be cured except by curing the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills cure these ills by curing the kidneys. Gettysburg women are learning it. Here's a local case.

Mrs. J. Warren Gilbert, 128 W. Middle St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "My health was very poor for some time, owing to a weakness of the kidneys. I had nearly all the symptoms that usually accompany a bad case of kidney trouble, such as backache, restlessness at night, dizzy spells and headaches. I took many medicines but received no benefit until I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at People's drug store. They gave me relief at once and in a short time I was without a sign of the trouble. I heartily endorse this remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

DR. COOK FINDS THE NORTH POLE

News Comes From Shetland Islands.

ON APRIL 21, 1908

Explorer Cables to Wife "Successful and Well."

NOW ABOARD DANISH SHIP

Found Strip of Animated Land and Big Game Haunts.

Copenhagen, Sept. 2. — That Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the American explorer, reached the North Pole in his expedition which has just ended, was given full credence here.

A message was received at the colonial office here via Lerwick, Shetland Islands, announcing that Dr. Cook had reached the pole April 21, 1908. This dispatch was sent by a Greenland official on board the Danish government steamer Hans Egede which passed Lerwick en route for Denmark, and read as follows:

"We have on board the American traveller, Dr. Cook, who reached the North Pole, April 21, 1908. Dr. Cook arrived at Upernavik in May of 1909 from Cape York. The Esquimaux of Cape York confirm Dr. Cook's story of his journey."

It is understood that the Danish consul at Lerwick was officially notified of Dr. Cook's reaching the pole, but that he was bound to secrecy concerning the extent and nature of the explorer's discoveries.

Director Ryberg, head of the Greenland administration bureau, said that he did not expect to receive any further details of Dr. Cook's achievement before the arrival of the Hans Egede at this port, which probably would be Saturday afternoon. The vessel will make no stops on the voyage from Lerwick to Copenhagen.

Americans Are Jubilant.

Director Ryberg proceeded to the American legation and informed the minister that Dr. Cook reached the North Pole. This caused the greatest enthusiasm throughout the city and many Americans called at the legation to congratulate the minister.

The noted explorer, Commander Hovgaard, leader of various North Pole expeditions, was convinced that the message that Dr. Cook had reached the pole was true, but remarked that it was strange that no mention was made in the cable as to whether or not there is land at the pole. It is the intention of the people of Copenhagen, on Dr. Cook's arrival here, to give him a most enthusiastic reception.

FOUND A NEW HIGHWAY

With Strip of Animated Nature and Big Game Haunts.

Paris, Sept. 2.—The Paris edition of the New York Herald publishes a signed statement from Dr. Frederick A. Cook, which is dated "Hans Egede, Lerwick, Wednesday," on his experiences in the Arctic region.

"After a prolonged fight with famine and frost," says Dr. Cook, "we have at last succeeded in reaching the North Pole. A new highway with an interesting strip of animated nature has been found, and big game haunts which will delight sportsmen and extend the Esquimaux horizons.

"Land has been discovered on which rest the earth's northernmost rocks. A triangle of 30,000 square miles has been cut out of the terrestrial unknown. The expedition was the outcome of a summer cruise in the Arctic seas on the schooner Bradley, which arrived at the limits of navigation in Smith sound late in Aug., 1907. Here conditions were found to launch a venture to the pole. J. R. Bradley liberally supplied from his vessel suitable provisions for local use. My own equipment for emergencies served well for every purpose in the Arctic.

"The campaign opened with a few scouting parties being sent over the American shores to explain the way and seek the game haunts. Their mission was only partly successful because of the storms. At sunrise of 1908 (Feb. 19) the main expedition embarked on its voyage to the pole. It consisted of 11 men and 103 dogs drawing eleven heavily laden sledges. The expedition left the Greenland shore, and pushed westward over the troubled ice of Smith sound. The gloom of the long night was relieved only by a few hours of daylight. The chill of the winter was felt at its worst. As we crossed the heights of Ellesmere sound to the Pacific slope the temperature sank to minus 83 centigrade. Several dogs were frozen and the men suffered severely, but we soon found the game trails along which the way was easy. We forced through Nansen sound to lands end. In this march we secured 191 musk oxen, seven bears and 335 hares. We pushed out into the polar sea from the southern point of Herbert island on March 18. Six Eskimos returned from here. With four men and 46 dogs moving supplies for eighty days, the crossing of the circum-polar pack was begun.

Survival of the Fittest

"Three days later two other Eskimos forming the last supporting party returned, and the trails had been now reduced by the survival of the fittest. The two best men and sixty dogs were picked for the effort. There before us in a line of 460 miles lay the goal. On March 30 the horizon was partly cleared and new land was discovered. There was urgent need of rapid advance. Our main mission did not permit of a detour for the purpose of exploring the coast. Here were seen the last signs of solid earth; beyond there was nothing stable to be seen.

Ate Their Dogs

"We advanced steadily, and now found ourselves beyond the range of all life. Neither footprints of bears nor the blowholes of seals were detected. The night of April 7 was made notable by the swiftness of the sun at midnight over the northern ice. Sunburns and frost bites now were recorded on the same day. In spite of what seemed long marches, we advanced but a little over 100 miles. We were now about 200 miles from the pole and sledge loads were reduced. One dog after another went into the stomachs of the hungry survivors until the teams were considerably diminished in number.

Pole In Sight

"On April 21 we had reached 89 degrees 59 minutes 46 seconds. The pole was in sight. We covered the remaining fourteen seconds and made a few final observations. I told the accompanying Eskimos that we had reached the 'Great Nail.'

"Everywhere we turned was south. With a single step we could pass from one side of the earth to the other; from midday to midnight. At last the flag floated to the breezes at the pole. It was April 21, 1908. The temperature was minus 38, centigrade barometer 29.82, latitude 90. As for the longitude it was nothing, as it was but a word.

Crazy With Joy

"Although crazy with joy our spirits began to undergo a feeling of weariness. Next day, after taking all our observations, a sentiment of intense solitude penetrated us while we looked at the horizon. Was it possible that this desolate region, without a patch of earth, had aroused the ambition of so many men for so many centuries. There was no ground, only an immensity of dazzling white snow; no living being, no point to break the frightful monotony. On April 23 we started on our return."

"SUCCESSFUL AND WELL"

Dr. Cook Sends Reassuring Message to His Wife.

New York, Sept. 2.—"Successful, well. Address Copenhagen. FRED."

Full of meaning, if "successful" were interpreted to indicate that he had reached the North Pole, the foregoing cable message, exasperating in its brevity, was received in New York from Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the American explorer, whom the latest cable advised credit with having accomplished what no man ever did. The message was sent, not to any scientific society nor to any of his associates interested in his expedition from a scientific viewpoint, but to his wife, who has been counting the days and hours and praying for his safety since his departure from this city on July 4, 1907.

Brief as it was, it was the first news that she had had from her intrepid husband since March 17, 1908, when he wrote her from Cape Hubbard, on the edge of the polar ice sea, on the northwest side of Ellesmere land. At that time he advised his companion, Rudolph Franke, then stationed at Etah, Greenland, with supplies, to wait there until June for his return, but in the event of Dr. Cook's failure to appear to proceed to America. Franke waited as instructed, but as Dr. Cook failed to come back he caught the Peary auxiliary ship and reached New York last fall. Since that time Dr. Cook's whereabouts have been a mystery, although members of the Arctic club in this city, viewing the situation optimistically, were inclined to think that he had reached the pole, despite his long silence.

The message from Dr. Cook to his wife was dated at Lerwick, Shetland Islands, the first available point of transmission in the regular steamship course between Greenland ports and Copenhagen, whither he is bound. Because of its brevity, the assumption is that the message was sent primarily to assure his wife of his safety, and not to apprise the world of his discovery.

A DREAM FOR CENTURIES

Some of the Most Noteworthy Attempts to Reach the North Pole.

The dream of finding the North Pole has for centuries lured explorers, scientists and daring adventurers. Whether this dream has now become a reality by the achievement of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, of Brooklyn, rests thus far upon the reports cabled from Copenhagen, apparently through an official source.

Some of the most recent or noteworthy attempts to reach the North Pole are enumerated below:

Walter Wellman, an American, left the Island of Spitzbergen for the pole in a balloon Aug. 15, 1909. His airship became disabled after he had traveled 30 miles, and he was forced to return.

Peary Now in Polar Regions.

In 1906 Commander Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., reached 87 degrees 6 minutes, equivalent to about 203 miles from the pole. Commander Peary is now in the polar regions on another expedition. A relief ship was sent out a month ago to endeavor to pick him up. He started from Sydney, N. S., July 17, 1908.

On Sept. 3, 1905, Captain Ronald Amundsen, a Norwegian, completed the first voyage through the north-west passage. He left Christiania on the Gjoa, June 17, 1903, and arrived at Herschele Island in the Arctic ocean in Sept. of 1905.

In 1904, Baron Toll, a Russian, led a polar expedition party by way of Siberia, but all the members perished from the cold.

In 1903, in Eriksson, a Dane headed an expedition and got as far as Saunders Island, where they were rescued in a destitute condition.

In the same year, Anthony Fiala, a young Brooklyn explorer, sailed on the ship America, and proceeded further north than the Duke of the Abruzzi. His party endured great hardship before they were rescued.

The Duke of the Abruzzi made his expedition in 1900.

In 1895, Dr. Nansen reached 86 degrees 14 minutes on the vessel Fram, which left Ingor Strait Aug. 4, 1893.

Andre's Fatal Balloon Trip.

Professor Andre made his fatal balloon trip in 1897. He left Trumsoe, Norway, in his balloon, the Eagle, bound for the pole. Since his departure nothing authentic has been heard of Professor Andre.

In 1883, Captain DeLong's expedition in the Jeannette was lost near Henrietta Island.

In 1882 the Greeley expedition reached 83 degrees 24 minutes and in 1845 John Franklin made his disastrous attempt to penetrate from Lancaster sound to Behring strait.

NEARLY KILLED MAN AND LOOTED HOUSE

Robbers Refused to Believe He Had Only $20.

Norristown, Sept. 2.—Four men entered the residence of George Johnson on De Kalb street, near the German town pike, and after nearly killing Johnson ransacked the house and departed. Since the death of his father eight years ago Johnson has lived alone on the farm, and as he has been thrifty has saved considerable money.

It was after midnight when Johnson was aroused from his slumbers and saw four men standing in the room. "Give us your money!" demanded one of the men.

"All the money I have is in the bank," replied Johnson.

"You lie, and unless you tell us where you have your wealth hidden we will kill you," said the leader.

Johnson told the men that all the money he had about the house was $20. The robbers did not believe him and after they beat him over the head with a club, he was shot in the right side and left unconscious.

When Johnson recovered his senses the robbers had ransacked the house and departed. Notwithstanding that he was weak from loss of blood, Johnson crawled along the road to the farm of John R. Steffen. The physicians say he cannot live. He is unable to give a good description of his assailants.

STRIKERS GAIN A POINT

Railroaders Will Refuse to Bring Imported Men to Steel Plant.

Pittsburg, Sept. 2.—Another victory was recorded by the Schoonville strikers, when it was reported that members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, employed on the Pittsburg Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad, had refused to bring any more strike breakers to the Pressed Steel Car company's plant.

A committee representing the trainmen called at the strikers' headquarters at McKee's Rocks, and after the conference Chairman Wise, of the strikers' executive committee, stated positively that no more imported men will be transported over the Fort Wayne route.

According to an authoritative statement, but 300 men were at work in the big plant.

G. W. Weaver & Son THE LEADERS

THE TAILORED SUITS MORE POPULAR THAN EVER

Do you ever wonder who settles the styles? Your dress-maker depends on the fashion plates. The up-to-date Suit, Dress and Waist Manufacturer—"Wooltex" and others) does it differently. They have their representative in Paris, and other fashion marts, who goes everywhere that fashionable dressed people go. She writes Fashion letters, with sketches, to her home employers every week. Each season she sends home a dozen or so of the handsomest and most practicable models she can buy. The home designers study these models (many of which are entirely taken apart) sketches and letters, one gets a hint here, another there, then they set to work in keen competition each trying to outdo the other. All these models are then submitted to a Style Committee. Perhaps only a few will be chosen from a score or more, while the committee will suggest a change in some little detail here or there. The few chosen models often represent an expenditure of several hundred dollars, and yet many of them may be reproduced and sold for twenty or thirty dollars.

The writer of this Ad recently had the privilege of going through the best of the Suit and Coat factories of Cleveland, Ohio, where light, air and proper sanitary conditions prevail. He saw how the garments were drafted, cut, tailored etc., saw all through the different stages of the making. He was introduced to the designers, had a conversation with the style committee and with the head of the advertising department, in fact, looked into the details from office to packing room. He also learned WHY there is a seeming difference in price, not seen at first glance, in suits from factories less careful of a good name than those visited. Learned why a rightly tailored suit wears longer, is more dressy and sometimes costs a little more than the poorly tailored garment. We hope for success along the lines of the best possible for the price.

Nervous Collapse

"I have traveled for thirty years continually. I lost a great deal of sleep, which together with constant worry left me in such a nervous state that finally, after having two collapses of nervous prostration, I was obliged to give up traveling altogether. I doctored continually but with no relief. Dr. Miles' Nerve came to my rescue—I cannot describe the suffering which this Nerve saved me. Whenever I am particularly nervous a few doses relieve me." A. G. C. LIBBY, Wells, Me.

There are many nervous wrecks. There is nervous prostration of the stomach, of the bowels, and other organs. The brain, the kidneys, the liver, the nerve centers are all exhausted. There is but one thing to do—build up the nervous system by the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve. Its strengthening influence upon the nervous system restores normal action to the organs, and when they all work in harmony, health is assured. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable.
For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment.
Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J.
Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful.
It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

LEADER AMONG NEWSPAPERS

One of the many traits that commend the Philadelphia Record to people who do not live in the great cities is that it is a newspaper that is not selfish about its news, and not city-centered in its ambitions. There has long been a well grounded complaint that most of the great metropolitan dailies are provincial, and take it for granted that city news is all that it is necessary for them to print.

The Record apparently takes a different view. While giving a faithful chronicle of all that occurs in its own city, it does not neglect nor skip the news of any part of the wide field that it covers.

A WINNING COMBINATION.

The first five or six years in the life of an orchard may be counted upon as well high unproductive. To overcome this some grow a cover crop in sections where the winters are cold, which, being a secondary consideration, can be counted on for but a slight return. In the west, where the winters are milder, strawberries are grown among the trees and not only serve this purpose where needed, but give generous return for the use of the land.
In the Hood river valley, famed as an apple and strawberry section, the strawberries in the young orchards
net the owners all the way from $200 to $700 per acre. At the end of five years the trees come into bearing, when the numbers of rows may be decreased or the plants entirely removed. Strawberries might well be grown thus in even much colder sections, as the plants and covering required to protect them would catch as much snow as would be needed to protect the roots of the trees.

HOME TO STAY! HIP, HIP, HOO- RAY!

Home to stay! Hip, hip, hooray!
No longer will that waiter let slip
"Mistah, you forgot dat tip!"
No more will that Jersey skeeter bite
And jerk me out of bed at night.
No more to walk "New Yawks" White Way.

Where I saw sweet Salome play.
No more, O darling summer girl,
Wilt thou bewitch with yaller curls!

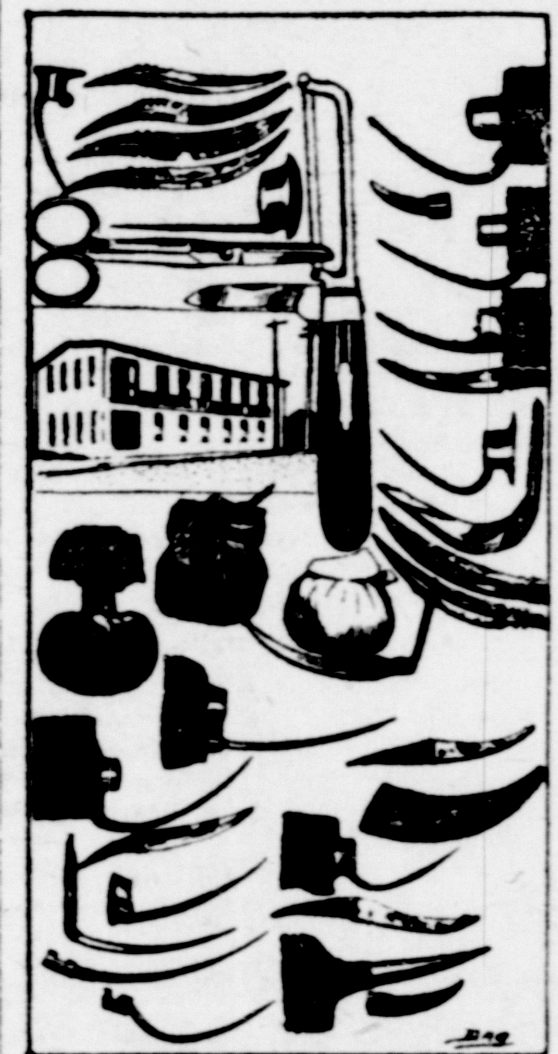

Home, sweet home—no more to roam
Where no bluefish splash in the hash.
Nor hands automatically reach for cash.
Nor fat bathers my corns mash.
Nor rough breakers my ribs smash.
Oh, it's so delightfully cool!
Wasn't I a conserved fool
Thinkin' I wouldn't sweat down there
In that awful board walk glare?

Glad I'm home! Hooray, I'm free!
See? No dude clothes all day on me.
Collars here, shoes over there.
Cuffs and neckties under chair.
Trilbys cocked high in the air.
No style here! Don't need to care.
No city dudes around to stare.
Ain't this bully? Just suits me!
Too much stuck up at the sea.

But, say—hooray!—maybe some day
When I get more pay
And Jessamine names the day
We'll honeymoon at the shore
Where those moony breakers roar.
Will you know us when we dip down
there
Or do the walk on a roller chair?
Well, I guess! You'll just swear
We are the sweetest swells there.

THE COCKFIGHTER'S OUTFIT.
Our picture represents a famous cock's collection of cockfighting paraphernalia and the only manufactury of cockers' supplies in the world,
located in Indiana.

These artificial spurs or gaffs are booted to the Game cock's legs, are from one and a half to six inches long, and a fighter is "short" or "long heeled" according to length of spur used. They are dignified by such names as "soul searchers," "jaggers"

SPURS AND COCKFIGHT TOOLS.
and "meat ax slashers." The saw is used in shaping the natural spur for the reception of the artificial one, the dubbing shears for cutting off cocks combs and wattles, and the round objects, or gloves, are strapped to the cock's legs so they may practice and not knock out each other's eyes.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Pennsylvania farmers, according to report, were paid the best for their agricultural products the past year.
They take a back perch in poultry products, however, as the whole state only produced $15,000,000 worth.

One hundred dollars apiece was offered for three black swan's eggs at Central park, New York, and refused.
Old birds are worth from $300 to $500 each. The park authorities set the eggs. As black swans are sports—the exception—those in charge will likely get left and say, "Waal, I'll swan!"

While high weeds afford a certain shade for chickens, at the same time they are a hiding and breeding place for snake and furry foes. If extensive, fowls often go through them to the clear space beyond, become bewildered and get lost. They are not ornamental nor useful. Plant trees and berries for profit and shade.

The number of canaries in the United States is estimated at 5,000,000.
Each bird consumes twenty-five pounds of seed a year, and thus $7-500,000 is spent on these caged birds.
Costs less to keep hens and pays far better.

Fanciers from twenty states have already engaged space for Baltimore's next winter show. New York, Boston and Baltimore are the largest shows in the United States.

One of the common adulterations of wheat bran is ground corn cobs, and wheat middlings are often fixed with ground rice hulls and peanut shells.
Pennsylvania has passed stringent laws against such fraud. A sample of feed and a dollar as fee sent to the state department will secure an analysis of a suspected article.

When a hen cackles the rest generally follow suit. When one poultry-man toots his horn the others begin to toot. Thus when a faucier values his hen at $10,000 others began the same bluff. Now, if hens were separately assessed these lies would quickly be repressed.

An Indiana poultryman was killed
by the pistol he set for a chicken thief.
What an awful pity people can't see the danger of a gun set to kill. You can now take out a burglar policy on your flock, which is far better than taking human life.

SUCCESS IN DAIRYING

By HAROLD J. DICKERSON.

Poor cows have everywhere honeycombed dairy society. They are "dead-beats." The more of this kind a man owns the poorer he is, and the longer
he keeps them the poorer he becomes.
To achieve success he must dispose of his worthless cows and adopt improved methods.

The first requisite in the dairy herd is good breeding. To start with registered stock is not absolutely essential, but select some good dairy breed and stick to it. There is no one dairy breed superior to all others. If there was we would all have it. Each breed has its imperfections as well as its redeeming features.

Different breeds are suited to different localities and conditions. Study the characteristics of each and choose the one best suited to the conditions by which you are surrounded. And remember that the term "dairy breed" does not include any of the so called dual purpose kind. You cannot eat your pie and keep it. Neither can you secure a breed that will successfully yield both milk and meat. You might as well expect a horse to pull two tons and trot in the two minute class.

Get as good a bull as possible from the chosen dairy breed, preferably one that has one or more daughters of high merit. It is often impracticable to buy a fully matured sire. In that event secure one with high producing ancestors, particularly the dam and grandam.

If you expect satisfactory returns from your dairy herd you must do your share—that is, you must furnish the wherewithal to make milk and butter. The cows cannot pick it out of the sunny side of a straw stack; neither can they face a cold northwest wind and gather profit from frosty cornstalks. A good cow must be a good feeder. Poets are born, not made.
But the making has a great deal to do with dairy cattle. Start right with the calf and never let it stop growing.
The result will be a healthy, well developed dairy cow.

If you are looking for results, the balanced ration is absolutely essential to the dairy cow. The most important components of the animal body are water, ash, protein and fat. If any of these elements are lacking in the dairy ration there will be a decrease in the flow of milk. On the other hand, if any one substance is fed more than is necessary it will be wasted.

Too bulky feeds should not be fed to heavy milkers, as they will have to eat too much in order to obtain sufficient nourishment. Likewise if the feeds are too concentrated the dry matter will be lacking. It is better to feed roughage high in protein, such as alfalfa or clover. If straw or corn fodder is used it will necessitate the feeding of a larger amount of concentrates. But will it pay to feed high priced grains? Most assuredly it will!
If a cow will pay for the hay that she eats, she will pay for a liberal grain ration.

The mill feeds, which some think so costly, bring a large amount of nitrogen on to the farm, whereas in selling grain the farmer must either buy commercial fertilizers for the replenishment of his soil or let his farm run down.

Give your cow a square deal, then take your Babcock tester and scales and say to her: "Old cow, I'm from Missouri, and you've got to show me.
I'm going to weigh and test your milk regularly, and if at the end of the year your record isn't satisfactory
I'll show you the way to the shambles."

Have a profitable standard and weed out all cows that fall below. Until a cow's ability to produce milk is known she has her owner at a disadvantage.
Guessing is unsafe and unbusinesslike.
The foam is deceitful, and the amount of milk is often overestimated as much as 2,000 pounds per year.

Dairy Wisdom.

If milk is to be separated, the sooner
it is done after milking the better.
See that the cows have access to pure water at all times.

Keep rock salt in all the mangers
and in a box in the pastures.

Bran is one of the dairy cow's best foods. It contains bulk to make it di-gestible and protein and ash to form milk. Bran and cornmeal form one of the best combination dairy feeds.

Rice hulls are a very poor dairy feed, being very woody. Rice bran is better, but not so good as rice polish, which is a dairy food very rich in nutritive elements.

The old idea of "hay tea" as a calf feed is not a bad one. By mixing with it one-fourth pound each of flaxseed and wheat middlings to two gallons of the tea per day calves do well.
By gradually increasing to a pound of middlings two pounds of flesh per head per day have been gained.
